From the Major's Desk

*"Here at the cross,
in this sacred hour,
Here at the source of reviving power.
Helpless indeed, I come
with my need,
Lord for Thy service,
fit me I plead."*

Bramwell Coles (1887-1960)

This is the season of the cross. It blooms everywhere for a few weeks a year, then it disappears until next spring, to bloom again for a few weeks. For this short season, though, it's the thing to wear or hold on to. We glorify it for a moment, then we forget for a year.

But, the truth is that we need to return to the cross often. Not because our salvation is there, although without the cross, there would be no salvation. It was merely the instrument of Jesus' death. That alone is reason to return there. Not because there is any power or magic in the cross itself.

We need to return to the cross daily, so that we can nail our sin, our failures, our regrets, and our past to the cross, and leave it there. Jesus died on the cross to forgive our sin, and to make us pure and holy in the sight of God. The Apostle Paul says, in Galatians 2:20, "I have been crucified with Christ, and it is no longer I that live, but Christ living in me." So, we also need to be crucified with Christ.

All this simply means that, on a daily basis, we must surrender all that we are, and hope to be, to Jesus. The cross is simply the instrument by which Jesus surrendered Himself to pay the price for our sin.

As we consider all that Holy Week means, may we ever be able to sing "Here at the cross", or maybe even pray the words of the chorus above, and surrender ourselves into the will of God for us.

God bless you, and Happy Easter!!
Major Harold Poff

See who you helped at Christmas

You don't often get to see who your time and dollars benefit, but here's a small glimpse:

Amere Crawford a.k.a. Sunny age two in November was diagnosed with AML (Acute Myeloid Leukemia) August 7, 2013, at Riley Children's Hospital in Indianapolis, Indiana. Sunny has proven to be a fighter and too tough for cancer.

We had the honor of assisting Sunny's family during Christmas and were inspired by this little man's fight and message of hope. His mother, Andrea, has given us permission to share his name, story and picture to further the cause and his fight.

Leukemia cells returned in his spinal fluid in November 2013. He returned to Riley for a month of chemotherapy. Doctors said this was very rare for him to relapse so soon; only 3% have done so and it only shows in the spine. Sunny completed his rounds of radiation on April 1, 2014, and his spinal fluid is FREE OF CANCER.

As I said, you don't often see the good that you've done...but it is there in ways you can't imagine. The family thanked everyone for their prayers and asked for your continued support as he still has a way to go in his battle.

Sack lunches

I put my carry-on in the luggage compartment and sat down in my assigned seat. It was going to be a long flight. 'I'm glad I have a good book to read. Perhaps I will get a short nap,' I thought.

Just before take-off, a line of soldiers came down the aisle and filled all the vacant seats, totally surrounding me. I decided to start a conversation. 'Where are you headed?' I asked the soldier seated nearest to me.' Petawawa. We'll be there for two weeks for special training, and then we're being deployed to Afghanistan.

After flying for about an hour, an announcement was made that sack lunches were available for five dollars. It would be several hours before we reached the east, and I quickly decided a lunch would help pass the time...

As I reached for my wallet, I overheard a soldier ask his buddy if he planned to buy lunch. 'No, that seems like a lot of money for just a sack lunch. Probably wouldn't be worth five bucks. I'll wait till we get to base.' His friend agreed.

I looked around at the other soldiers. None were buying lunch. I walked to the back of the plane and handed the flight attendant a fifty dollar bill. 'Take a lunch to all those soldiers.'

She grabbed my arms and squeezed tightly. Her eyes wet with tears, she thanked me. 'My son was a soldier in Iraq; it's almost like you are doing it for him.'

Picking up ten sacks, she headed up the aisle to where the soldiers were seated. She stopped at my seat and asked, 'Which do you like best-beef or chicken?' 'Chicken, I replied, wondering why she asked. She turned and went to the front of the plane, returning a minute later with a dinner plate from first class. 'This is your thanks.'

After we finished eating, I went again to the back of the plane, heading for the rest room. A man stopped me. 'I saw what you did. I want to be part of it. Here, take this.' He handed me twenty-five dollars.

Soon after I returned to my seat, I saw the Flight Captain coming down the aisle, looking at the aisle numbers as he walked, I hoped he was not looking for me, but noticed he was looking at the numbers only on my side of the plane. When he got to my row he stopped, smiled, held out his hand and said, 'I want to shake your hand.' Quickly unfastening my seatbelt I stood and took the Captain's hand.

With a booming voice he said, 'I was a soldier and I was a military pilot. Once, someone bought me a lunch. It was an act of kindness I never forgot.' I was embarrassed when applause was heard from all of the passengers.

Later I walked to the front of the plane so

I could stretch my legs. A man who was seated about six rows in front of me reached out his hand, wanting to shake mine. He left another twenty-five dollars in my palm.

When we landed I gathered my belongings and started to deplane. Waiting just inside the airplane door was a man who stopped me, put something in my shirt pocket, turned, and walked away without saying a word. Another twenty-five dollars!

Upon entering the terminal, I saw the soldiers gathering for their trip to the base. I walked over to them and handed them seventy-five dollars. 'It will take you some time to reach the base. It will be about time for a sandwich. God Bless You.'

Ten young men left that flight feeling the love and respect of their fellow travelers.

As I walked briskly to my car, I whispered a prayer for their safe return. These soldiers were giving their all for our country. I could only give them a couple of meals. It seemed so little...

A veteran is someone who, at one point in his life, wrote a blank check made payable to 'citizens of United States' for an amount of 'up to and including my life.'

That is Honor, and there are way too many people in this country who no longer understand it.'

How you can serve our veterans through The Salvation Army

Captain Cindy Hoag, left, and Roxanne Albrecht distribute valentines made by elementary school students to the veterans.

Many of us want to thank our veterans and let them know how much we appreciate their service, but you may not know how to help.

The Salvation Army serves hundreds of thousands of veterans in need. The ministry of The Salvation Army for veterans has grown from serving coffee and donuts during WWI to providing various programs of comfort and cheer.

The services we render to the veterans depend upon the needs of the veterans' facility where we serve. There are many opportunities for volunteers to serve at the VA Northern Health Care System Hospital in Fort Wayne.

Volunteers serve coffee and take veterans to their appointments within the hospital, drive courtesy shuttles in the parking lot, do administrative work, volunteer in the pharmacy or drive veterans to appointments within the city or to other clinics.

Volunteers must attend a four hour training, complete a background check and take a TB test. If you are interested in this gratifying volunteer opportunity, please call Roxanne Albrecht, (260) 744-2311 or email at Roxanne\_Albrecht@usc.salvationarmy.org.

Currently, our veterans are in need of new sweats, sizes Medium-XXL, socks, underwear and gas cards. Bring these to The Salvation Army, 2901 N. Clinton Street and we will deliver them to the VA Hospital. We can give you a receipt for your taxes.
